Flights from North America to Asia are long regardless of where one starts. Often it is necessary to make connections to a final destination via Singapore. Changi Airport in Singapore has long known that and with the traveler in mind it developed the world's most travel-friendly airport. Changi Airport has six gardens that includes a butterfly garden and a roof-top sunflower garden, plus a swimming pool, rest areas, fitness center and even free Singapore tours.

In keeping with the travel-friendly concept Changi Airport's hotel, the Crowne Plaza Hotel, was designed more like a resort than the traditional airport hotel. The hotel's spa is perfect for relaxing between flights or as part of a stay in Singapore. Refresh in the hotel's 30-meter landscaped outdoor swimming pool with a lap area, then head to the spa for a complete rejuvenation treatment.

Refreshed and rejuvenated enjoy a meal at the Azur Restaurant, an all-day dining concept built around two show kitchens with chefs presenting a lively multicultural theatre serving the best of the Eastern and Western international cuisines.
